June 26, 1952 (cont'd)

George Sloan, Chairman of the International Chamber of Commerce, came in with Willard Thorp and we had a talk about George's recent European trip.

I did a lot of telephoning today about the two treaties, appropriations hearings, the Danish tanker, and a variety of other matters that are causing us trouble.

Tonight Arthur Gardner came to dinner with me.

The temperature in the shade today went slightly over 100°.
